TOP TIP!

Don't know your star sign, just look for your birthday!

ARIES

Mar 21st -
Apr 20th

You're sweet, just like the aloe vera plant, and you love taking care of people!

TAURUS

Apr 21st -
May 20th

You like to roam wild and free, which is why a bouquet of wildflowers would be perfect for you! You're a bundle of colour and fun.

GEMINI

May 21st -
Jun 21st

Like the coladum, you're a big ray of sunshine! This pink plant would complement your decor perfectly.

LEO

July 23rd -
Aug 22nd

You're loyal to the end and always standing tall for your friends, much like the sunflower!

VIRGO

Aug 23rd - Sept 21st

You love to stand out, which is why a leafy cheese plant would be perfect for you. Well done for daring to be different!

LIBRA

Sept 22nd -
Oct 22nd

Like lavender, you're amazing at staying calm and keeping the peace. Your friends always come to you for helpful advice!

SAGITTARIUS

Nov 23rd -
Dec 21st

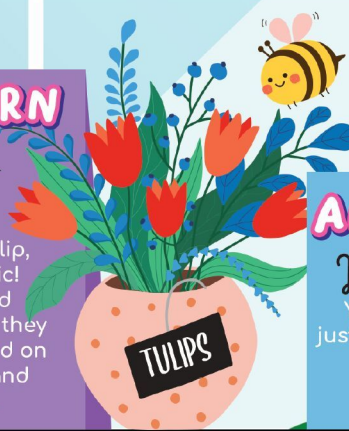

You are a prickly pal who stands up for what they believe in, just like the cactus plant.

CAPRICORN

Dec 22nd -
Jan 20th

Much like the tulip, you are a classic! Your family and friends know that they can always depend on you for baking and movie nights.

AQUARIUS

Jan 21st - Feb 19th

You're a true romantic just like the heartleaf plant. Keep dreaming and exuding that main character energy!

Discover which botanical beauty would look best in your room!

CANCER

June 22nd -
July 22nd

You stand out in a crowd just like a tiger lily. These flowers are also associated with royalty - maybe you're meant to be a queen!

TIGER LILY

SCORPIO

Oct 23rd - Nov 22nd

Sweet and hopeful, you always make sure to document your fun adventures. Poppies would look great on your bedside table, or pressed into your photo scrapbook!

POPPIES

PISCES

Feb 20th - Mar 20th

You're truly special just like the hydrangea! People always say you're the kindest friend around, and you always make sure to say thank you.

NON BINARY
JOY

'We've only just started this year and they already want us to think about a new school,' I sighed, kicking the heel of my shoe against the wall. It was late September, the summer lingering like a houseguest that's got nowhere better to be, and we were outside in the playground making the most of the late sunshine. The bell had rung two hours ago, but this evening was the annual Year Six meeting about Secondary School. The teachers had invited all of us Year Sixes to stay on the premises, to save us going home and then traipsing back again.

Me and my friends had gone outside to get some fresh air, and I'd secured an excellent seat on top of the low wall that circled the playground, with a view of the sun setting down behind the school.

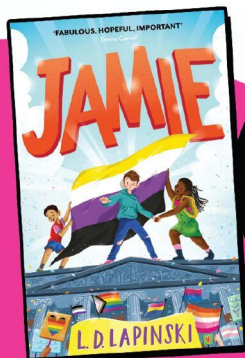

'It's like they can't wait to get rid of us.' 'Can't wait to get rid of you,' Daisy said, grinning at me. 'Some of us they'll be devastated to see go.' Ash spluttered. 'Daisy, last year Mr Hill said you were driving him to retirement.' 'That's only because I'm so clever I forced him to confront the truth – that he's a dried-up cornflake of a man who should have retired during the war.'

Daisy and Ash and me are all best friends. We're like one person who's been split into three, or an equilateral triangle where each of us is one of the sides and together we form a perfect shape. My mum actually calls us the Bermuda Triangle when she's ticked off with us, but we don't care. We've been best friends since we were babies, and we know everything there is to know about each other.

For example, I know that Ash lets his older sister practise pedicures on him for her college course, and I know Daisy is in love with Meathead Michael Holloway from down her street, even though she pretends not to be. And they both know about the time me and Olly locked ourselves into the bathroom at our grandparents' by accident and Grandad had to climb up a ladder and through the tiny window to rescue us.

Daisy stuck a hand into her bag and rummaged around in it, in search of one of the mini Mars Bars she scattered into her bag once a week. They'd end up hidden under books and pencil cases like buried treasure and sometimes they'd get super-squashed and end up looking like caramel slugs, but she'd still eat them. 'The teachers would have us all working down a mine if they could, anyway. You heard Mr Hill when we went to look around the gallery in town – he said we should all be "out earning a crust instead of learning about drama and art".'

I snorted. Mr Hill and I hadn't exactly been best buddies. By the end of the last year, he had refused to talk to me or about me at all. That was great in some ways because it meant I never got picked on to answer questions about algebra, but it was pants in other ways because Mr Hill was in charge of the school football team, and if he didn't like you, you didn't get in.

snacks!

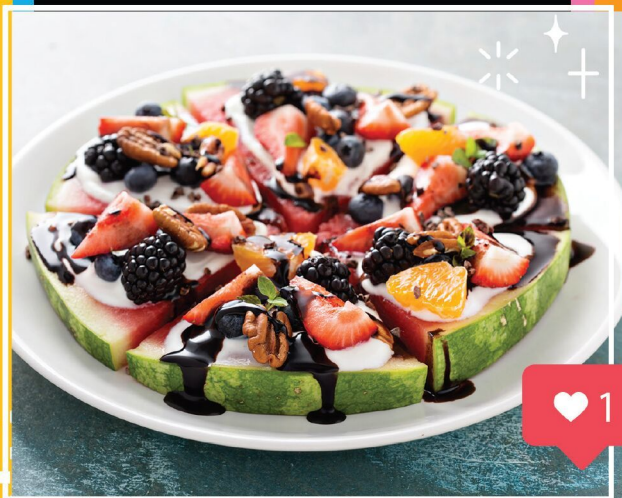

Watermelon pizza

YOU WILL NEED:

- ★ 1 WATERMELON
- ★ 2 Tbsp YOGHURT
- ★ STRAWBERRIES
- ★ AN ORANGE
- ★ CHOPPED NUTS
- ★ CHOCOLATE SAUCE

Carefully cut a watermelon into wedges. Spread yoghurt for the base layer, then cut your fave fruits into bite-size pieces for your toppings. Add some nuts for extra crunch, then ooze chocolate sauce over the top. Remember not to eat the crust!

Whipped Lemonade

YOU WILL NEED:

- ★ 150G ICE CUBES
- ★ 100G CONDENSED MILK
- ★ 100G WHIPPED CREAM
- ★ 75G LEMON JUICE
- ★ LIME SLICES

In a blender, add the ice cubes and condensed milk, then mix until smooth. Gently fold in the whipped cream to avoid knocking out the air, then pour in the lemon juice. Add more if you want an extra zing! Serve in a glass with slices of lime.
